THE ECAC® WOMEN'S HOCKEY STORY

ECAC Hockey has played the role of both a leader and pioneer during the two decades that NCAA Division I women's hockey has been in existence.

Home to the premier Division I league in the nation, ECAC Hockey boasts a history that gleams with accomplishments. From individual honors to contributions on the international stage, the league and its players and coaches have set a high standard for excellence in the game. League athletes have earned All-America honors 51 times, claimed 32 Olympic Gold Medals, and have won the Patty Kazmaier Award eight out of the 10 years it has existed as the designation of the nation's top player.

Membership in ECAC Hockey has changed to meet the needs of the exploding collegiate sport as 24 teams have called ECAC Hockey home since the first championship was contested in 1984. The league's current roster of teams includes some of the most storied programs in the nation: Brown, Clarkson, Colgate, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Princeton, Quinnipiac, Rensselaer, St. Lawrence, Union and Yale.

Brown holds the distinction of being the oldest women's hockey program in the nation. The first Bears squad took to the ice in the fall of 1963 and the program has remained a leader ever since.

This season marks Clarkson's fourth year in the league. The 2003-04 season was the inaugural year of women's ice hockey at Clarkson. Under the tutelage of head coach Rick Seeley, the Golden Knights earned a spot in the league's playoffs in their ECAC Hockey debut, finishing the regular-season slate in eighth place. In 2005-06, the team finished in the top half of the league and saw junior Kira Hurley earn Goaltender-of-the-Year honors.

Colgate joined the Division I league in 2001-02. The Raiders begin the current campaign under head coach Scott Wiley, who was honored as the 2003-04 Coach of the Year in just his second season behind the bench.

Cornell also boasts a storied history after beginning its program in 1971. Since that time, the Big Red has accumulated 335 victories in 34 seasons. Through the years, Cornell hockey has made its mark both on and off the ice. A number of former Big Red players have achieved notoriety after their careers at Cornell ended, such as Dana Antal, a member of the 1998 and 2002 Canadian Olympic teams, and Digit Murphy, widely acknowledged to be one of the top coaches in the collegiate game.

Dartmouth has grown into one of the nation's most consistently impressive programs, with 17 ECAC Hockey League tournament appearances, including the league title in 2007, and four NCAA Women's Frozen Four appearances to its credit. In fact, the Big Green has posted a record of .500 more than 20 times over the years.

Harvard has emerged as a force to be reckoned with, both in the league and on the national scene. The Crimson's rise to prominence began in 1981-82, when the fourth-year varsity program posted a 15-6 record and won its first Beanpot Tournament. Current coach, Katey Stone, began in 1994, and has since guided the Crimson to some of its greatest moments, including a 33-1 record along with ECAC Hockey and ACHA championship titles in 1999 and NCAA Frozen Four appearances in 2001, 2003, 2004 and 2005.

Princeton has sponsored women's hockey since 1979, and in that time the Tigers have participated in the ECAC Hockey tournament 14 times. The program's best finish came in 2006, when the Tigers won a school-record 21 games and advanced to the league semifinals.

Quinnipiac is entering its third year of competition in ECAC Hockey and sixth as a Division I varsity program. During head coach Michael Barrett's first six seasons, he has established Quinnipiac as an up-and-coming program on the Division I map.

Rensselaer enters its second season as a full-fledged member of ECAC Hockey. Head coach John Burke led the Engineers to an eighth-place finish and a spot in the League championship in the squad's first season of League competition. Rensselaer posted a 12-22-1 overall mark and an 8-13-1 mark in League play in 2006-07.

St. Lawrence has had intercollegiate hockey since 1979. From 1979 through 1992, the Saints competed at the Division III level, garnering three conference championship titles in the early 1990s. In 1993-94, the Saints joined the Division I women's league and made the playoffs in 1995. Three seasons later, 1997-98, the Saints officially became a Division I program. In 2001, St. Lawrence recorded the first win in the first-ever NCAA Women's Frozen Four, and advanced to the national championship game. The Saints repeated their visit to the NCAAs in 2004, 2005, 2006 and again in 2007.

Union embarks on its fifth season as a member of the League under first-year head coach Claudia Asano.

Yale continues its rise to prominence under six-year head coach Hilary Witt. In 2006-07, the Bulldogs posted a 15-14-2 overall mark and 10-10-2 record in League competition, which qualified Yale for the League championship quarterfinals for the fifth consecutive season under Witt's guidance.

Clarkson's original women's hockey team, formed by Ron Frazer, played from 1974-1984 compiling a 77-72-3 record through 10 seasons. Frazer's Blazers featured numerous talented players, including Pam Morin '76, a leading force for women's hockey at Clarkson, Kelly Priestley '81, an inaugural Clarkson Athletic Hall of Fame inductee, and Cathy Champion-Demers '84, a top scorer for the Knights.

Former Clarkson men's hockey all-star, Colin Patterson became the first Golden Knights to have his name engraved on the Stanley Cup when he skated with the NHL Champion Calgary Flames in 1989.

KNIGHTS and the NHL

Built on tradition and success, Clarkson Hockey continues to be a breeding ground for future National Hockey League players. From legendary all-star forward Dave Taylor to today's stars such as Erik Cole, Craig Conroy, Chris Clark '98, Todd Marchant, Willie Mitchell and Todd White '97, former Golden Knights continue to impact the NHL.

Last year's Clarkson standout Shawn Weller, who joins the Ottawa Senators organization for his first full season in professional hockey, will look to join Kent Huskins '01 and Randy Jones as rising young stars in the league.

Clarkson's all-time leading scorer, Taylor '77, retired after 17 seasons (1977-94) with the Los Angeles Kings. He skated in four NHL All-Star Games and accumulated 1,069 points for the Kings.

Colin Patterson '86 played for 10 seasons in the NHL (1983-93) and was one of the top defensive forwards in the league. Patterson helped the Calgary Flames win the Stanley Cup in 1989. Along with Taylor and Patterson, Craig Laughlin '80 was also one of the first Clarkson players to prove himself in the NHL. He played eight seasons (1981-89) with Montreal, Washington, LA, and Toronto. Clarkson honored Taylor, Laughlin, and Patterson for their NHL accomplishments in 1989 when their collegiate numbers (24, 22, and 25) were retired.

Luciano Borsato '88 skated several seasons with the Winnipeg Jets, and Steve Dubinsky '93 enjoyed a 10-year career, while Jarmo Kekalainen '89, Scott Thomas, Marko Tuomainen '95 and Mike Casselman '91 experienced a taste of the big league.

Clarkson is also well represented in NHL front offices. Taylor, who served as the Kings' Senior Vice President/General Manager following his playing days, enters his first season with the Dallas Stars as Director of Player Personnel. Those are 12 names that any collegiate women's hockey program would be proud to have on its roster over the course of the past four years. Their tireless effort, dedication, and talent on the ice and in the classrooms at Clarkson University have helped form a base that is already the envy of many women's hockey programs in the country, and their diligence will always be remembered in the halls of Cheel Arena, as the pioneers of Clarkson Women's Hockey.
